FASHION WEEK SOUNDTRACKS

We started listing the music playlists used at fashion week in 2005. But this year we have significantly expanded our coverage, and have listings for over 160 shows in London, Paris, Milan, and New York.

Since we started the lists in 2005, the music has evolved dramatically. Increasing amounts of designers are using sound designers with the ability to strategically support the collection and the brand.

We're seeing a lot less DJ'ing and a lot more sound production. A lot less obvious tracks such as Madonna's Vogue, and a lot more diversity. Talking to some of the sound producers involved in the show it's clear that they are being brought in at a much earlier stage of the planning process. And that designers are increasingly paying as much attention to the soundtrack as to the other details of the show production.

The music choices this season clearly reflected the economic crisis. There was a return to the stability of classical music, lots of songs preoccupied with the idea of money... and lack of it. And lots of Carole King...

FASHION WEEK SOUNDTRACKS

But mostly there was Grace Jones. The winner of the Most Played Artist - 14 plays, and the Most Played Track (Pull Up To The Bumper) - played 5 times.

The hardest working Sound Producer for AW 09/10 was Jerry Bouthier who created soundtracks for 10 shows.

Popular plays this season were from Circlesquare, The Residents, and there was lots of airplay for the Slumdog Millionaire soundtrack.

Notably creative high-concept soundtracks at the Henrik Vibskov show with a score from Svend Jacob Pedersen that incorporated the noise of a washing machine; and Rachel Comey who overlaid a comedy track by Heather Lawless with musical instruments.

DSquared wins the award for most plays, managing to pack in 22 tracks during their show.

FASHION WEEK SOUNDTRACKS

Our list was put together by attending shows and with the co-operation of designers, PR teams, and sound design agencies. We requested the soundtracks from all designers; for those who have not yet responded, we'll update the list once we receive more.

In calculating the Top 10 ranking, we have only included the AW09/10 shows, not the couture shows for SS09 which happened at the same time. Though we have included couture SS09 in the alphabetical listing.
